

Ana Butković. Finished primary school and Classical gymnasium in Zagreb, flute studies at the Music Academy in Zagreb, and psychology studies at University of Zagreb where she also obtained MA and PhD. In January 2020 she became Associate professor at the Department of Psychology, Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, University of Zagreb.

She participated in 3 research projects funded by the Ministry of Science, Education and Sport and 3 research projects funded by the University of Zagreb. She is currently working on two projects: "Personality, intelligence and prejudice: multivariate behavioural-genetic analysis of the dual process model", funded by the University of Zagreb, and "Teacher personality, emotion and performance: A dynamic perspective", funded by HRZZ.

She taught obligatory and elective courses at the Department of Psychology, Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences and at the Department of Psychology, Centre for Croatian Studies. She started a new elective course „Psychology of Music“. She was the primary investigator for the 20th Psychological summer school on „Personality and music preferences“. She supervised 40 BA theses at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, Centre for Croatian Studies and Music Academy.

She improved her research and teaching skills on different workshops. In 2014, 2015 and 2019 she visited Karolinska Institute in Stockholm where she collaborated on the project "Behaviour genetics of musical expertise", while in 2015 and 2016 she visited Birkbeck University of London.

She actively participated in a number of international and domestic conferences and published as author or co-author 33 papers (14 in Q1 journals) and 3 book chapters.